

THE LIME NEWS

Financial Learning Ambassador Peer to Peer Program

In this issue:

- Books
- Online Library
- Laptops

Zoom into Savings!

The Fall semester is starting and expenses are rising, but, don't worry, we have tips to help you save money as you invest in your future.

Check out the Tips and Tricks included in this week's edition!

Tips and Tricks

Q: How can you save on books?

A: Ask your professor or consult your syllabus to know if you really need the book, or if you just need copies of certain sections. If books are needed, the links below can help.

Bookfinder.com: This site will help you compare prices between different sellers and pick the cheapest books! Other sites that can help you save money are: Amazon.com and Chegg.com.

Books can also be rented. You do not have to buy the book if you will never use it again. If you decide to buy it, remember to look into used versions.

You cannot use your Financial Aid refund at these sites, but when your refund arrives you can reimburse yourself. For more information on refund disbursement dates, click here.

The Valencia Virtual Library staff may also assist you in finding books and resources. You may request to speak to a librarian online here.

Q: Do you need a free student loaner laptop?

A: Our OIT department will be glad to assist with your request. Please click here and complete the request form.

Further your learning about finances through Grad Ready and Addition Financial for free.

All underlined words are hyperlinked. We are not affiliated with these resources except with Gradready, Addition Financial, and Lynx

I save now to live comfortably tomorrow. -Emily Rodriguez.

Saving is investing in your future self! -Serena Kelly

It's not about how much money you make, it's about how you save that money that will make a difference in your life and financial success.. -Shalena Mclaurin

