

Your Guide TO THE WEST CAMPUS Computer Access Lab

West Campus Library 1st Floor

What is the Computer Access Lab?

The Computer Access Lab is an open access lab available to any Valencia student with an active Atlas account. All UCF students may also use the lab. Lab staff are available to assist all computer users.

The Lab has all new laser printers that can print in both black & white (10¢ per page), as well as color (20¢ per page). Students can print using their Valencia Student ID or Atlas Login info.

We offer both Windows and Macintosh computers. Students are responsible for bringing their own storage media to save files. It is suggested that students save to their OneDrive account or to a USB device.

The Lab meets accessibility standards for access and assistive technology.

Notice

The Computer Access Lab is a learning environment.

- Phone calls in the lobby, only
- Food is NOT permitted
- Children are NOT permitted to enter the Lab
- Students are expected to follow acceptable use of technology policies and U.S. copyright law

One-on-one training available. See the front desk for details.

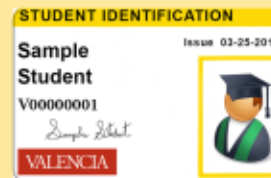

New State of the Art Printing Software and Hardware

The new student printing system consists of new hardware devices as well as a student web portal. Previous "release stations", stand alone printers and copiers have all been replaced by Print Stations; multi-function printers that provide the release station function, print and copy output as well as scanning functions all in one device.

Funds can be added through the student printing system web portal, <http://print.valenciacollege.edu>, or from a Pay Station device. Cash is only accepted at the Pay Stations. Credit and debit cards are accepted on the web portal or at a Pay Station.
